Mayor of San Francisco Confers With Labor Secretary Today

BULLETIN WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(UP)—Mayors of eight important seaport cities today sent a joint telegram to all parties concerned in the maritime strike, asking that their differences be placed before a board of arbitration they would ask President Roosevelt to appoint.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(UP)—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins revealed today the labor department has proposed a new solution seeking to end existing difficulties preventing settlement of the west coast maritime strike.

After a conference with Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco, Miss Perkins disclosed she had talked by telephone with Assistant Secretary Edward F. McGrady, who is seeking to mediate the walkout in San Francisco.

McGrady told her he had submitted a new peace proposal yesterday and he was now "talking it over."

She declined to reveal nature of the plan, saying it might interfere with its success.

Close To Settlement She said McGrady "is the best mediator board we've got."

"He is so close to settlement that it would be a mistake to change horses in mid-stream," she said when the suggestion that a formal arbitration board be set up was submitted to her.

Threshold of New Day "Labor stands at the threshold of a new day," Green shouted to almost 500 delegates assembled to decide whether an end to the John V. Lewis rebellion shall be sought by conciliatory methods or by ruthless warfare.

"As I visualize the future, I feel justified in expressing the opinion that we are emerging from a period of economic demoralization and I think I can see a better day for workers," he said.

Strike Causes Worry For Weather Man

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 16.—(UP)—A new difficulty arising out of the Pacific coast maritime strike was revealed here today by Dean Blake, U. S. meteorologist. Blake said the ship tie-up has made the weather man's job a tough one because, with fewer ships at sea, sufficient information on storm centers and low pressure areas is not available.

"We depend for our reports from passing vessels," Blake said, "but now only an occasional foreign ship passes. A lot of our weather results from low pressure areas about 400 or 500 miles off the coast."

They are under sentence of from four months to one year in jail.

6 KILLED IN VILLAGE FEUD

AAA OPPOSED BY GRANGE MASTERS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—(UP)—Twenty-five state masters of the National Grange pooled today by the United Press, opposed any revival of the A. A. A.

Only eight saw partial benefits in the original program, either to special agriculture interests or in its marketing provisions. Two had "no comment."

The farm leaders were united in their disapproval of destruction of crops and cattle to control prices.

Almost as whole-hearted as their distaste for the A. A. A. was the groups' approval of the government's soil conservation program, rural electrification and consumer and producer cooperatives.

MARY ROGERS WED IN SPRING

generally accepted they would be married.

Her first marriage was to Owen Moore. She divorced him to marry Fairbanks in 1920.

For nearly 13 years, that marriage was publicized as Hollywood's "ideal romance", matching as it did two of the screen's greatest luminaries.

Couple inseparable

Fairbanks and his wife were inseparable. For years it was their proudest boast that they had never missed dining together. They rarely appeared in public without each other's company. The $400,000 home they built on a Hollywood hilltop and called Pickfair, was the "house that love built" according to sentimentalists who regarded the marriage as so idyllic that it would endure.

The rift came gradually. Fairbanks began making prolonged trips from home. He took a round the world cruise, went on hunting expeditions to Africa, and social tours to Europe.

He curtailed his picture-making activities to one movie a year, which gave him more and more time to wander off to Europe, China, India, Africa and the South seas.

The open break finally came in July, 1933, when Mary received a fateful cablegram from her husband. He bluntly informed her that she would have to maintain Pickfair out of her own funds. It admitted that Hollywood's "Perfect Romance" had gone the way of countless others.

"I still love him," she said at the time. "If there is a divorce, the grounds will be incompatibility."

She waited five months before she filed a divorce complaint, and then waited 13 more before she appeared in court to prosecute it.

She charged, instead of incompatibility, mental cruelty. She won the decree January 10, 1935.

Fairbanks at the time was traveling in Switzerland with the former Lady Ashley, who became his wife last March—after his divorce from Miss Pickfair became final.

ADmits TECHNICAL VIOLATION OF LAW

Appearing in Santa Ana justice court today and pleading guilty on one count of violating the state law which prohibits women from working more than eight hours in any one day, Max Solomon, local dealer in women's apparel, was fined $50, which he paid in cash.

Solomon admitted to Judge Kenneth Morrison, through his lawyer, H. C. Cameron, that he had committed a technical violation of the law "but the extra hours worked by the girls during that day were taken off later, so that they did not work, on an average, more than eight hours per day."

On motion of Deputy District Atty. Harold McCabe, five other counts against Solomon, were dismissed.

Jury Selected To Try Barnes Case

A jury trial of Bob Barnes, San Juan Capistrano ranch employee, charged with driving the car of his employer, O. Rosenbaum, without the owner's consent, got under way today in Superior Judge G. K. Scovel's court.

OIL COMPANY MADE DEFENDANT IN SUIT

Suit for $1000 was filed today in superior court against the Associated Oil company by Emma J. Curtin, Max F. Bayha, Ida Mausest, Emma Bayha Morlock and Hermine B. Lowe, owners of land leased by the oil company, at Yorba.

The complaint alleged that three of four derricks operated on the lease collapsed during an "ordinary" wind October 22, 1935, putting the three wells out of commission for some time, with a consequent loss of royalties to the plaintiffs, amounting to $600. In addition, Emma Curtin sued for $400 damages for loss of eight orange trees upon which the derricks tumbled.

KEN Murray SAYS:

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Seems like everything is happening to England! Aside from domestic and international complications, Fred Perry, her ace tennis player is now turning professional in America. . . . Guess Fred figures that while winning as an amateur is a beautiful thing, even Major Bowes doesn't provide old-age pensions.

The unfair part of amateur tennis is that it doesn't have the real opportunities of college football. . . . At least, a great gridiron star usually gets a free education.

However, turnout is fair play! An Englishman may become King of the court at Madison Square Garden, and an American girl, Queen at the Court of St. James. So, here's wishing good luck to Freddy and Wally. . . . Both are seeking new crowns in that love-game.

THREE ESCAPE DEATH AS CAR HANGS ON CLIFF

A guardian angel guided the destinies of three week-end visitors to Dana Point last night, when the car in which they were riding narrowly missed plunging over a 250 foot cliff.

Mistaking two white posts to the left of a winding road along the cliffs at Dana Point for a gate, Jack Aaland, 1125 West 58th street, Los Angeles, drove his car between them and over the cliff. The rear wheels caught, and the new 1937 sedan hung suspended, nose pointing at the sands on the beach 250 feet below.

Aaland, his wife, and a companion, Miss Helen Cliff, a visitor from New Jersey, scrambled out of the car and struggled back to the top of the precipice. The trio walked to a garage at Dana Point, where a tow car was sent to the scene of the accident. After the car had been "snaked" back to level ground, it was found that the only damage done was to the rear axle. None of the occupants were even bruised.

Insurance of Crops will be Forum Topic

Insurance of Crops will be Forum Topic

T. B. Talbert, former mayor of Huntington Beach and former member of the board of supervisors, will debate W. B. Estes, Santa Ana insurance agent, at the weekly meeting of the Forum for Political and Economic Education. The debate will be held in the Junior college auditorium and start at 8 p. m.

According to E. M. Sundquist, chairman for the evening, the debate subject will be "Resolved: That the federal government should insure farm crops." Talbert is considered to be an authority on the problem and is the author of a pamphlet on the subject. He will take the affirmative side of the argument with Estes arguing for the negative.

Sundquist said today "The subject for the debate is one of the most important topics for discussion today. The proposal to insure farm crops has been advocated by both the Republican and Democratic parties and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, at present, is said to be working out details of a farm crop insurance plan.

"Importance of the proposal can readily be seen when one realizes that the farmers form such a large portion of the nation's population. The fact that city workers already have been given protection through the Social Security act makes the farm protection a matter of considerable importance."

LOCAL SCIOTS PASS OVER NEW BRIDGE

Added to the interest of the annual Sciots convention in San Jose from which several Santa Anans returned last night to their homes, was the fact that the party with Walter Wright, 421 Orange avenue, had the honor of being among the very first to cross the famous new San Francisco bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright had in their party, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Lyman, 1023 West Canfield street, and C. E. Carlson, 1207 South Van Ness avenue. They reached San Francisco Thursday morning, and through a happy combination of circumstances, succeeded in being among the first twenty cars crossing the bridge directly after the prominent officials of the dedicating party.

Theirs was the honor of being the first of the Sciots delegates to cross the bridge, and the event was played up in the San Jose newspapers. As they waited near the head of the line, they saw the lights flash on as the button was pressed in Washington by President Roosevelt. As they crossed the bridge, they met the official cars crossing from the Oakland side, headed by Governor Marriam. The Santa Ana Sciots reported a fine convention in San Jose, with many interesting features and a fine hospitality extended by the city.

The River Rhone is regarded as the swiftest river in the world, attaining a velocity of 40 miles an hour in certain parts of its course.

George Rochester, editor and publisher of the Hynes-Clearwater Journal was the main speaker at the luncheon. Sidelights on the Thelma Todd death case and other crimes as well as a review of newspaper management were discussed by the speaker.

LAMBS TO TALK ON TRIP AGAIN

Learning that half of the more than 400 persons who appeared at Charles W. Bowers Memorial museum yesterday afternoon to hear of their adventurous three-year cruise to Cocos Island off the west coast of South America, were turned away because of a limited seating capacity in the auditorium, Dana and Virginia Bishop Lamb today agreed to present another program next Sunday afternoon at the same place.

Mrs. F. E. Coulter, curator, announced.

Next Sunday, Lamb will give a resume of the story related yesterday and then will discuss the physical and mental preparations made for the trip and the experiences on Cocos Island where Lamb fell ill with appendicitis.

Yesterday, Lamb told an audience of approximately 200 that he and his wife left here with but $4. A short while after leaving, they met a white man who was financially distressed and gave him $2, he declared. "But we got along all right since then there was plenty of fish in the sea," he added. Whereas the audience was able to name seven different methods of cooking fish, Lamb explained that he and his wife had discovered 127 different methods for cooking the same food.

The audience was keenly interested in the Lamb's five-day trip through the Panama canal, during which they were fished frequently by acquaintances along the way. The toll charge for the Lamb boat was 75 cents, Lamb said. A passenger vessel such as frequently passed through the canal, is assessed $12,000 toll for each trip, it was reported.

TWO ARRESTED AS DRUNKEN DRIVERS

Raymond Galardo, 31, Delhi, and Albert L. Eastman, 38, Route 2, Santa Ana, were arrested on drunk charges early yesterday morning at Fourth and Lacy and Fourth and Seymour, respectively. Officers reported Galardo was sitting behind the steering wheel of his car, and Eastman was in the act of trying to start the engine of his truck. When reports came to police that two Mexicans were drinking in an automobile in the 200 block of East Third, Saturday evening, an investigation was made. Nasario Luna, Route 2, Box 583, Delhi, was found there, allegedly too drunk to drive a car. A friend said he would drive the car home for Luna, in whose car were three children. Police were unable to locate the Mexican reported to have been drinking with Luna.

FIRST STEPS TAKEN TODAY TO LAUNCH FEDERAL SOCIAL SECURITY PROGRAM IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(UP)—Two hundred and forty thousand postmen set out from 45,000 post offices throughout the nation today to inaugurate the government's social security program to protect 26,000,000 American workers against the economic misfortunes of old age.

Before nightfall, they will have delivered 3,500,000 pieces of federal mail, one for every industrial and commercial employer in the country whose employees might be eligible for monthly U. S. treasury benefits when they retire at the age of 65.

The distribution job today will stand as a record for only eight days even though it is more herculean than last spring's payment of a federal bonus to 1,900,000 soldiers on one day or the World War army draft.

On November 24, the same 240,000 letter carriers will set out again with 50,000,000 more social security blanks, this time one for every employee federal census officials think might come under the new law's provisions.

About 25,000,000 of the 50,000,000 employees will be eligible, social security experts believe, to start paying taxes on their wages Jan. 1, 1937, to create the pension fund. At that time, the government will start collecting a 2 per cent contributory tax, shared half by employees and half by employers, from the nation's payroll.

The levy will increase to 6 per cent by 1949, exempting about 14,000,000 agricultural workers, persons employed by federal, state or local governments, sailors, domestic servants in private homes, railroad employees already protected by the railroad retirement act, and persons connected with non-profit organizations.

The money, pouring into the U. S. treasury at the rate of $147,000,000 next year and $1,841,800,000 every 12 months by 1975, will provide monthly pensions ranging from $10 to $55 a month for 26,000,000 workers as they reach 65.

Benefits will start January 1, 1942, giving the employee-employer reserve fund a $3,556,000,000 total by that time. The fact that tax collections already will exceed pension payments makes it possible for the treasury to have funds on hand amounting to around $45,565,000,000 by 1975.

The blanks distributed to employers today presented seven questions for business heads to answer. They covered the type of work done by each firm, its location, and the number of persons employed.

Using that information, post office officials cooperating with 56 newly established social security field headquarters, will provide employee's program forms to 50,000,000 workers on Nov. 24.

Police News

Going to a manhole on West Fourth street between Sycamore and Broadway last night, on report of a citizen that there was a gas leak there, Officers W. B. Moreland and L. C. Rogers stood guard while a gas company meter man was being called to the scene. But he found no gas leak—only the presence of sewer gas, due to stoppage in the sewer line. City workmen remedied the stoppage.

Police were unable to find prowlers reported last night at the home of G. D. Board, 519 East Washington, and Saturday evening, at a home, 524 Santa Clara street. The prowler at 524 Santa Clara, was described as a "wind-dog peeper."

Four speeders paid fines in city court Saturday, records of Judge J. G. Mitchell show. They were Ralph C. Kidd, 205 Mountain View drive, Tustin, 29; Arthur Perez, 1919 West Third, Santa Ana, 26; Fannie E. Johnson, Route 1, Box 173, Santa Ana, 26; and Thomas F. Pattison, Route 2, Box 143-B, Orange, 26.

Marion O. Madison, piano tuner, 122 North Citrus, Anaheim, reported to city police Saturday that he had his car parked in front of 1011 West Fourth street while working on a piano at 1010 West Fourth, when thieves stole a black leather kit containing a $30 set of piano tuning tools.

Arrested on a warrant issued by City Judge J. G. Mitchell and signed by Inez Peralta, Beatrice Valenzuela, 23, Route 1, Yorba Linda, has haled into city police court Saturday to face an assault and battery charge. Pleading guilty, she was given a 30-day suspended jail term.

Two 13-year-old boys, reported stealing oranges from the J. A. Dunn place, 902 South Shelton, yesterday, were apprehended by city police and questioned. The boys admitted they had taken some of the oranges but agreed to make restitution. Officer J. W. Foster talked with them, presenting some sound advice to be followed in the future.

The alleged drunk man who was reported bothering children at a barber shop, 413 North Broadway, Saturday evening, had fled when Officers R. S. Elliott and Roy Hartley went to investigate.

First reported as creating a disturbance at the Santa Ana Iron Works, 224 East First street, then reported as hanging from the rear of a Pacific Freight Lines truck at First and Main and refusing to get off when warned to do so, "because I'm hitch-hiking," Carl Lee Jackson, 32, Los Angeles, was arrested Saturday evening, taken from the truck and jailed. He was booked on a drunk charge. A coat which Taylor left at the Iron Works headquarters was recovered by police and presented to Taylor at the jail.

Stolen from its parking place on Walnut street, near the Santa Ana high school, Friday, a car belonging to William J. Tway, 417 Linwood, and valued at $860, was found by Covina police Saturday, abandoned on the streets of Covina.

DISTRICT MEET PLANNED

FULLERTON, Nov. 16.—President Ted Stedman and Secretary Darrel McGarvan will attend the quarterly meeting of the southern district of 20-30 clubs at 7 o'clock this evening at El Favorito cafe in Orange, as delegates of the local club. Other club members also plan to attend the meeting.

B. J. Wolfe of Orange, district deputy governor, is in charge of the program.

COURT CASE IN MEET SUNDAY AT PLACENTIA

"If the golden rule were turned the other way, and we could expect to have done to us what we have done to others, we certainly would befall the white nations of the world," according to the Rev. William B. Holley, pastor of the First Christian church of Orange, who Sunday afternoon talked to the young people at the rally of the Orange County Christian Endeavor union in the Calvary church of Placentia.

The speaker, a former African missionary, said that the "nations of the world that are powerful will have to do a tremendous amount of loving and of kind serving to make up to the Negro nations of Africa for the ravages on the youth of that country in the World War; and for the economic and political exploitation of those peoples," as he described how the youth of Africa was conscripted to fight a white man's battle, and how they did not only in battle, but from exposure to a strange climatic condition, and were returned to their homes, those that survived, with disease.

He told also of the exploitation of the natural resources, and said that the policy of the World War, and of exploitation reached one peak in the invasion of Ethiopia.

"In all this, those who have studied have failed to understand the mind of Jesus," he said. These people are confused, in a way, but are holding in their hearts their opposition. The black man suffered terrible tragedy during the World War. He is still suffering.

"How would we feel had we been so treated by another race?" he inquired.

In taking this subject, the speaker followed a lead by Dr. D. J. Brigham, who brought a devotional message concerning "God Seeth What We Do," or "We Cannot Run Away from God."

Earl Zahl presided. The singing was led by Clarence Nida of Los Alamitos, and a special musical number was sung by a choir directed by Mrs. Winifred Sloop.

Future meetings were outlined by Ed Hoyer, past president. They include a meeting for breakfast Thanksgiving morning at 8 o'clock at the Church of the Brethren in Santa Ana. The Rev. W. C. Buchanan of the Santa Ana First Christian church will lead the devotions. The executive board will meet at the Santa Ana Evangelical church on December 8; a state leadership meeting will be at the Santa Ana United Presbyterian church January 16 and 17, replacing the regular county rally.

COUPLE UNITED AT AFTERNOON RITES

Miss Jackson is the daughter of Thomas W. Jackson, of 217 East Broadway. Daleesi's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daleesi, 305 North Drake, Fullerton.

The Rev. D. Howard Dow, rector of St. Michael's, performed the ceremony. The bride wore a grey street dress with brown shoes, hat and gloves and a bouquet of lilies of the valley and yellow roses.

She was attended by Miss Priscilla Blyback, Mason Henry was at the organ. The church was attractively adorned with flowers and candles in white.

The couple left after the ceremony for a week at Palm Springs. They will be at 217 East Broadway on their return. Mr. Daleesi is affiliated with the Bank of America, Fullerton.

News Behind The News

By Paul Mallon

HIDDEN BUYING—WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Behind President Roosevelt's promise to do something about foreign money rolling into this country for investment is a current situation which few people know about. Everyone seems to be assuming that the amount of gold coming here from abroad is the true measure of foreign investment. These gold imports have not been extra-large lately. Their aggregate total for the past year or so has not reached an immediate danger point. Consequently, there has been a tendency to look for political or other motives behind the president's move.

A leading financial insider, however, has made an investigation which indicates the situation is not all gold. About a month ago, he became impressed by indications that brokers with whom he was in contact were not doing their usual share of the stock market business. He thought the trouble might be with the brokers, so he made a personal investigation and discovered that all the large commission houses out in the country were in the same quandary. The business was coming from somewhere else.

Only one deduction was possible. An unusually large proportion of the buying which has sent the stock market up during the last 30 days has come from abroad, from London, Amsterdam and Paris. It will not show in the gold figures for a long time, if ever.

METHODS—The study which Mr. Roosevelt is directing will not have to proceed far to find a method of stopping foreign investments here. They can be taxed.

It is very doubtful, however, that this complete remedy will be suggested. The fact is foreign investments are desirable. The trouble comes when they are withdrawn, and serious trouble comes if they are all withdrawn at once. They can thus affect our markets very seriously.

The problem is not how to keep the money out, but how to keep it here. This is a little harder to do, but, as far as large gold exports are concerned, they are already subject to withdrawal licenses. And, in event of war, they could be seized.

CONSTRUCTIVE SUGGESTION—Apparently the president was only trying to point to one weakness in the present financial recovery movement and show his administration is alert to it. Also, in a negative way, he disclosed the post-election purpose of his administration to protect existing values.

If any situation is going to develop shortly which would cause European investors to withdraw their funds from this country, no one here seems to know it. Apparently that consideration did not enter into the decision.

PREPARATIONS—Certain under-cover workers are attempting to form a new silver lobby. They have already approached some manufacturers, but these were not interested. The basic idea of the attempted maneuver is to get silver propaganda going at the forthcoming Pan-American conference in somewhat the same manner as Big Bill "Base Drum" Shearer worked the armaments propaganda at a Geneva disarmament conference. They claim to have a heavy official connection, but really have none. Of course, a silver lobby for congress would be superfluous, as long as the silver senators are on hand to handle that work.

PRESTIGE—The man behind Mr. Roosevelt's decision against airplane exports within a year was Acting War Secretary Woodruff. He has been plugging for such a program for months. In siding with him, the president, in a minor way, turned his back on the navy admirals. Gossips at the White House gates believe it may help Woodruff's chances of getting the cabinet job permanently.

DECLINE—The published announcements said the American Liberty league will go on, but the situation seems to be that Mr. J. M. J. Shouse will go on. He is the director, and is likely to become the whole league in the future.

It may be denied, but some authorities behind the league wanted to fold it up in the middle of the recent presidential campaign. A meeting was held, and the decision to continue was made on the ground that discontinuance would appear to be surrender. The recent decision is said to have been on somewhat the same basis.

CONTROL—Lawyers do not often tell stories to the supreme court. The atmosphere there is not conducive to joviality. However, noted Newton Baker, lawyer in a public utility case, broke down the barrier the other day. He was contending that the PWA has no constitutional authority to lend money to Greenwood county, South Carolina, for a hydro-electric plant, and said: "Nothing was ever more precipitate and complete than the abandonment of its sovereignty by South Carolina in a scramble for this money. It reminds me of the potentate of a shadowy jungle state when I asked him how he managed to control his subjects. He replied: 'I make a show of force'—and then he added, with a laugh, 'I give them a little money.'"

REFORMATORY USES TALKIES—GREEN BAY, Wis. (UP)—Weekly talks have been made part of the educational and entertainment program at the Wisconsin state reformatory here. Officials expected talking pictures to become a valuable adjunct to the reformatory facilities for rehabilitating wayward youth.

POLICE HUNT SHORT CHANGE ARTISTS HERE

Two men, alleged short-change "artists," were being sought by city police today, here, following reports of two Santa Ana business men that the "artists" were practicing their "trade" here.

C. H. Ryan, 1735 West Fifth, declared the men came to his feed store, purchased four sacks for 20 cents, presented a $10 bill for payment and when he gave them change tried to "talk him out of" a $5 bill. "When I 'called' them on it, they left the store and disappeared at once," Ryan declared.

Two minutes after Ryan called police, M. Ayon, Oakwood Winery, 415 West Fourth, called and said two men described as those who approached Ryan, had just short-changed him out of $5, and had left without paying for a quart of gin and a quart of whiskey. The men were described as follows: No. 1—five feet six inches tall; 140 pounds; 24 years old; heavy set; dark wavy hair; without a hat, and wearing blue serge suit. No. 2—five feet six inches tall; 125 pounds; 30 years old; slender; dark straight hair; without hat, and having bad teeth.

SPORTS ROUND-UP

Lacking a few stray sport items, the last for another week: West Winds is leaving tomorrow for a belated vacation in the northlands. Got to see that San Francisco bridge, and—ahem—the Big Game. . . . By the time the conductor returns, Santa Ana will have clinched the Eastern conference championship. Riverside was the big bump. . . . In my opinion. . . .

I never knew this to fail. A crowd always looks twice as large as it is. Everyone figured the Santa Ana-Riverside struggle drew between 4000 and 5000. But the gate receipts, the never-failing barometer, were $1000, almost to the red cent. Meaning about 2000 paid their way into the park. Of course the student bodies of the two colleges were admitted on their student cards. . . . Santa Ana and Chaffey should break all Bowl records. Friday night. . . .

Johnny Lehnhardt clinched an all-conference position against Riverside. He has all the inland observers raving. Wilbur Fogleman of the Riverside Enterprise says anyone who leaves Lehnhardt off his all-star creation should have his think-tank examined. . . . Did you know the rugged Lehnhardt has never missed a minute of football through injury? In five years of football at Garden Grove and Santa Ana the big bruiser has never been laid up. He even won't let 'em put tape on him. Coach Johnny Ward says Johnny played through one entire season for Garden Grove with a broken hand. A player's player is Lehnhardt; also a coach's player. . . .

George Lake is turning back the Huntington Beach golf course to Oscar Stricklin, the leaseholder. Failure to obtain aid from the city for much needed repairs to the course was given as the prime reason. Huntington Beach dividers will have to travel for their golf now. . . . Garden Grove has a scholastic transfer from Gold Beach, Ore. named Lloyd Le Clair who ran the "hundred" in 10.5, put the shot 46 feet and threw the discus 126 feet as a freshman. . . .

If Santa Ana whips Chaffey it probably will play Los Angeles at the Municipal Bowl the night of Friday, December 4, rather than conflict with U. S. C. and Notre Dame the next afternoon. . . . If the Dons play Pasadena at the Rose Bowl it will be the following week-end. . . . Incidentally, Coach Bill Cook has definitely closed for a Santa Ana-Pasadena joust in the Rose Bowl next year—September 17. It will open the season for both schools. The Dons will act as "home team" and get all the gravy after shelling out $200 for rental, advertising, miscellaneous expenditures. . . .

Clarence L. Dersh, who more than anyone else was responsible for getting Fullerton to train at Fullerton next spring, will not be rewarded for his efforts. . . . The former Fullerton hotel man is now at Brea. . . . The San Diego Padres, who had a corner on the Fullerton lot, will train in San Diego. Old Bill Lane's health is poor and he can't travel. . . . Bill Sweeney, Portland manager, assured Fullerton of a "new deal." He will bring both the Pirates and the White Sox to Orange county to play the Coast league champions. . . . San Diego Chamber of Commerce can thank Wilbur C. Tuttle, Coast league president, as influencing the Ducks to train in Orange county. . . .

Delbert Jones, Valencia quarterback, is the best griddle to hit the Orange league horizon, since "Rusty" Ledbetter of Brea-Olinda. He is an all-conference player if there ever was one. . . . Charley Hale, Fullerton quarterback, will make some small college a nice ball pucker. He has everything but size. . . . Wendell Pickens, the Fullerton jaycee coach, is a bun man. Indeed, he spends his morning going to school at U. S. C. his afternoon assisting Chief Roy Priebe and in the evenings as a night school instructor. He even officiates in his spare time. . . . Coach Art Nunn has a world of basketball material at the Yellowjacket institution. So promising is the cutback that only one or two of the returning lettermen have a chance of making this year's team. . . . And Harold Lang's Fullerton team looks like the tops in the conference. The Jackets are already preparing for the spring season. Irwin Miller, the quarter-back who almost made the Olympic team, is returning. Larry Valero, the Valencia miler, is counted on for sterling performances, while an array of Eastern talent is counted on for additional points. . . .

Bronco-Loyola Game Moved To Coliseum

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—(UP)—Indications that 50,000 or more football enthusiasts would see the Santa Clara-Loyola football game next Sunday led Loyola officials today to transfer the game from Gilmore stadium to Memorial Coliseum. . . . A heavy advance reservation list prompted the change from Gilmore stadium to the Coliseum which has a seating capacity of 105,000. . . . The Bronco victory over St. Mary's was expected to assure a large crowd eager to see the only undefeated and untied team. . . .

ORANGE-LAGUNA PLAYOFF GAME SET FOR BOWL

After a long morning of deliberation and indecision, Orange and Laguna Beach high school officials late today finally decided to play their Orange league championship football game in Santa Ana and Chaffey should break all Bowl records. Friday afternoon at 2:30.

Earlier, the contest was booked into Fullerton's stadium. Laguna Beach declined to play at Orange, holding out for a neutral gridiron. Orange won the Major division title without defeat, although held to a tie by Anaheim in the final game last week. Laguna Beach, underlined in the Minor division at the outset, closed its conference schedule undefeated and untied.

Stewart White handles the Panthers. Maurice (Red) Guver, one-time Santa Ana Junior college and U. S. C. track star, coaches the Artists.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 16.—Less than a week ago I promised you, my constituents, that I would pick no All-America football team this season and gave for a reason that it was such a large task that no one man could happily accomplish it.

But I'm afraid I'm going to have to break my promise, for in Lincoln, Saturday, I saw a football player who was such a stopped-down honey (if a man weighs better than 200 and hard as reinforced concrete can be a honey) that it would keep me awake at night if I didn't put him on an All-America eleven.

The gentleman's name is Francis—Sam Francis—and he fullbacks for Nebraska's Cornhuskers, who were beaten 19 to 6 by Pittsburgh. Although he was on the losing team, Francis stood out as prominently as a still-walker at a midwest convention. Without him Nebraska might have been beaten by a score of—well, take a number from 50 to 75 and you won't be far wrong.

This is all Sam, the tireless one, did. All the punting for Nebraska and finished with a 45-yard average. His last kick of the game, after nearly an hour of bruising play, travelled 82 yards on the fly.

Threw all the passes, including the perfect one which gave Nebraska its touchdowns.

Made fully half his team's tackles.

Was the equal of any blocker on the field.

Carried the ball on half of Nebraska's plays.

Francis is a left-handed passer and a left handed kicker. But he does everything right, if you set him a mile, and at a mile-a-minute clip, yet he looks "soft." And if he isn't the best kicker in college football, where is his superior?

TENNIS

Pomona's powerful tennis team took all but two points from Santa Ana in a Citrus Belt league tournament here Sunday, sweeping everything but mixed doubles. Pomona's margin was 13 to 2, one of the worst defeats ever suffered by the Santa Ana Tennis club.

The Santa Anas have three more league matches on their schedule. They meet Fullerton here next Sunday, go to Redlands Nov. 29, close the season against Arrowhead Springs of San Bernardino here Dec. 4.

Yesterday's summary:

Men's singles—Blair (P) defeated Hallman (SA) 7-5, 6-7, 6-2; Jack (P) d. Ward (SA) 6-2, 6-2; Phillips (P) d. Jacobs (SA) 6-4, 6-1; Leman (P) d. Finster (SA) 6-4, 6-3; Kendrick (P) d. Merrick (SA) 6-2, 6-6.

HERBERT HOOVER'S TOUCHDOWN BEATS SAFETY AS SAINTS LOSE AGAIN; LONG BEACH BAGS TITLE

By LESLIE AVERY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Three of the major football teams continued undefeated and untied today as a curtain began descending on 1936 collegiate grid warfare.

With but two games remaining on most schedules, Northwestern, Marquette and Santa Clara still boasted unblemished records. Northwestern still meets Notre Dame. Marquette draws tough Duquesne. Santa Clara takes on Loyola of Los Angeles and Texas Christian.

Northern clinched the stern conference title by winning 9-0 over Michigan. Santa Clara turned in its first victory over St. Mary's 13 years, 19 to 0, and Marquette romped 33 to 0 over Mississippi.

The Pacific Coast conference muddle was cleared somewhat by Washington's 12 to 0 win over Southern California. The victory insured the Huskies of at least a tie for the conference championship and an equal chance for the honor of representing the west in the Rose Bowl with Washington State which smashed U. C. L. A. 32 to 7.

If the Cougars beat Washington in their Thanksgiving Day game there will be a deadlock for first place in the conference with both teams having a record of five wins, one tie and one defeat. However, Washington State might get the call for having beaten the team with which it tied.

The problem of an eastern opponent was as tangled as ever with Marquette the only eligible nominee of the "perfect record" teams. Alabama and Louisiana State, the two Southern hopefuls, kept their bids alive by defeating Georgia Tech 20-16 and Auburn 19-6, respectively. Both have ties against them as has Fordham, which was idle last week.

Notre Dame won the "up" end of its see-saw season last week, smashing Army, 20 to 6. Yale's Larry Kelly had another good week and the Underdog Elis kept coming from behind until they'd whipped Princeton, 26 to 23. Although without National championship pretensions, Georgetown tasted defeat for the first time of the year, being stopped 13-0 by Manhattan.

The win left Santa Clara's record of no defeats and no ties unblemished. The little Jesuit school from the suburbs of San Jose remains one of the three major teams of the nation with a spottless record, and is the only first-stratum eleven on the Pacific Coast with such a slate.

The contest was only five minutes old when Manuel Gomez rifled a fourth-down pass to Don de Rosa for a gain of 26 yards, putting the ball on the six-yard line. After one futile plunge into the line, De Rosa tossed a pass to Gomez who stepped across the goal for the first Santa Clara touchdown against St. Mary's in three years. Santa Clara scored again a few minutes later and blocked a punt for a third touchdown in the fourth quarter.

With this season's performance behind them, Santa Clara remained alongside Northwestern and Marquette as one of the nation's three "perfect" teams.

Next Saturday brings the final pre-season meeting of Santa Ana Commercial and Church league basketball managers is set for the Y.M.C.A. at 7:30 tonight, with Secretary Ralph Smiley asking each team to be represented.

"This is the deadline," said Smiley. "We must know definitely tonight what clubs will be in the two leagues."

Six teams are ready for the Church circuit, it is understood. It also is reported that the Elks will not enter the Commercial wheel.

LADIES' NIGHT SCHEDULED AT SAMPSON CLUB

Upwards of 800 women and a near capacity attendance of 2000 wrestling followers are expected to move into the Orange County Athletic club tonight for the first Ladies' Free show and a battle between the 230-pound bearded Mormon, "Brother" Jonathan, and Kiman Kudo, the Japanese champion.

Kudo has long been a favorite hereabouts, and hasn't lost a match since before Brother Jonathan started sprouting chin whiskers.

Tonight, however, the powerful, but lighter Kudo is apt to find Jonathan decidedly too tough, rough and big, despite the fact that nerve-pressure holds and knowledge of jiu-jitsu has pulled Kiman out of many a tough spot.

The big mistake, fans contend, is that Kudo agreed to wrestle straight catch-as-catch-can style, whereas in his past matches with giant heavyweights he has met them under mixed Judo and American style.

Whether he wins or loses, Kudo figures to give Jonathan a torrid match. Inch for inch, the Japanese is the greatest man of his weight on the coast.

Two other prime favorites, Snelling Steve Stretch and Ignacio Martinez, 230-pound Mexican, appear in supporting bouts.

Martinez, who is hailed as a successor to Vincent Lopez, draws rough-and-tumble Jerry Monahan in the special attraction while Stretch opens the program in a one-fall, 30-minute clash with the Elsie Tiger.

The secondary feature of the Women's Night card shows a pair of behemoths, Pat O'Shockley, 31-year-old redhead, and Leo Papiano, Greek veteran.

Except for a 25-cent service charge to cover state and federal tax, women will be admitted to any section of the arena, whether or not escorted. The first bout is billed for 8:30.

LLOYD CORNING PICKS 23 OF 25 GAMES, WINS REGISTER CONTEST

Smashing all past records, Lloyd Corning of 1507 West Sixth street, Santa Ana, won last week's Register Football Contest by forecasting exactly the outcome of 23 of the 25 games on the list.

Corning erred only on the Anaheim-Orange tie, and Army-Notre Dame.

He finished two ahead of the field, there being an eleven-way tie for second place. The following persons missed only four times:

Frances Koegler, 331 S. Garnsey street;
Mrs. Clara Green, 506 North Garnsey street;
Johnny Reyes, Placentia;
Dr. W. F. Kistinger, 203 Cypress avenue;
Bill Kolkhorst, 203 Cypress avenue;
Gordon Heath, 1322 South Parton street;
Earle E. Davis, 1112 Orange avenue;
Mrs. H. L. Bear, 1237 South Parton street;
Ralph Drennan, 407 1/2 E. Pine street;

Roy Whitten, 202 Orange avenue;
William Christian, Laguna Beach.

The outcome of the St. Mary's-Santa Clara match cost Frances Koegler a tie for first money. She missed only three times until the Sunday game in San Francisco went against her.

Last week's contestants were uniformly successful, possibly because there were fewer upsets than usual. Indicating how "hot" the prognosticators were, no less than 13 picked the Orange-Anaheim tie. These were Oliver Beier, George Clark, Ruth Hibbs, John L. Mitchell, Earl C. Hobbs, Floyd Arce, Lester Bock, Edward Ward, Elden Richards, Martin Kothe, Al Johnson, Jack Hinton and Edward Ham.

The list that appears in The Register today offers few, if any, "breathing spells" and it is doubtful if the champion will have to duplicate Corning's phenomenal contestants, and others, the correct scores of the games on last week's list are published:

Washington . . . 5 0 1 79 21 1000
Wash. State . . . 3 1 1 49 800
Sou. Cal . . . 3 2 1 85 39 600
U.C.L.A. . . . 3 3 0 59 84 500
California . . . 3 3 0 57 81 500

Washington's rampaging Huskies staked out claims to a Rose Bowl bid and the Pacific Coast conference title, and Santa Clara emerged as one of the nation's statistically greatest football institutions on the basis of week-end gridiron results.

Washington downed Southern California, 12-0, thereby hurdling the next-to-last and possibly most potent threat, to a Pasadena trip. The Trojans battled furiously but were unable to overcome the brilliant running attack offered by Coach Jimmy Phelan's stream-lined backfield.

Washington State alone remains in the way of Washington's invasion of Pasadena New Year's Day, and the Huskies are rated favorites over the Cougars. The game will be played at Seattle Thanksgiving Day.

Washington State defeated U. C. L. A. 32-7 in a lop-sided game.

Santa Clara bowled over St. Mary's 19-0, in a Sunday game at Kesar stadium in San Francisco. The Broncos functioned smoothly to break a 13-year "Moraga Jinx" and keep its record of no defeats and no ties clean.

Approximately 60,000 Sunday fans watched as Santa Clara forward-passed and maneuvered its way to victory over the team that has tagged an Indian sign on the Broncos since 1923.

'BEAT CHAFFEY' COACH COOK'S ONLY INTEREST

While Los Angeles Junior college of the Western conference started a "play Santa Ana" movement today, Coach Bill Cook's Dons were starting a "beat Chaffey" movement and letting the future take care of itself.

Coach Bert Heiser's Panthers have been pointing for Santa Ana for the past two weeks and are out to stop the relentless Dons, according to advance reports from Ontario.

Postponement of the Santa Ana-Chaffey game a month ago has worked to the distinct advantage of Chaffey. Earlier in the season it was just another football game. Now it takes on a championship caliber with the winner the likely champion of the Eastern division.

If the Dons win or tie they are "in." But if Chaffey wins they still will have to beat the powerful Riverside Bengals Thanksgiving Day. The game here Friday night should be the best of the year from a good many angles. It pits the sheer power of a mammoth Chaffey Panther team against a Don team that seems to have everything including power, deception and a passing attack that has not been stopped completely all year.

Coach Cook said that he would have to take inventory before he prescribed the week's preparation for the Panthers. Several slight injuries are known to have occurred at Riverside last week. Bob Holmes, center, has a bruised shoulder. Halfback Fred Lentz has a sprained ankle. Quarterback Ray Slides skinned a goodly portion of hide from an already damaged chin.

Los Angeles' play-Santa Ana movement followed the Cubs' upset victory over Ventura, 13-6. Los Angeles can win the Western division championship Friday night by beating or even tying Long Beach. If it does—and Santa Ana wins or ties with Chaffey—the association playoff will be between Los Angeles and Santa Ana, as it was in 1933, last year of Don dominance.

Mrs. Lowe, with Mrs. Lucy Scott assisting, was in charge of the dinner served at the evening meal hour.

A patriotic program was presented at the last meeting with Miss Ella Murdy in charge. The Gracia trio of Oceanview presented several instrumental numbers appropriate to the subject. "The Gettysburg address" was given by Mrs. Homer Hilborn, while Mrs. Moon told in interesting manner of "Life in an Army Camp," her father having been a band leader in an army camp for years, and the family seeing much of army life.

MARCIA DID NOT SPEAK UNTIL THE WADDELLS' MAID LEFT COFFEE ON A LOW TABLE WHERE SHE AND HELEN SAT BEFORE THE FIREPLACE.

After two months of enduring the knowledge of Frank Kendrick's thefts and disappearance, Helen's news that his whereabouts had been discovered, by mere chance, came as a sudden and unexpected blow, paralyzing coherent thought.

An automaton could not have added sugar and cream to a cup with less consciousness than did Marcia. She stirred, drank, put down the cup, with a hand become mechanical. Yet her first words to Helen indicated that her confusion was already settling, that she was seeking a channel leading toward a solution of the problem presented.

"The first thing that popped into my mind, just now," she said slowly, "was the possibility of amnesia. That's always the pleasantest explanation. But I think the embellishments rule that out."

"Frank as a busboy! What does that indicate to you, Helen? Not only that he's short of money—stranded; but that he is living in desperation, feeling himself cut off not only from his old life, but from every manner of his old life. I pity him with all my heart!"

"For weeks," Marcia continued, looking into the fire, "all of us who knew Frank have been wondering where on earth he could be. Now that he's found, who is clever enough to know what to do about him?"

Helen nodded, but was silent.

"I MEAN," Marcia said, "that there is a problem of procedure, to say the least. Your information—our information, now—properly belongs to a lot of people. To the people who lost money through him."

"We really owe it to all those people to tell them. But, then, what? Should they hold a meeting to decide what to do, since all have an equal interest and therefore equal rights? Somehow, the idea is ridiculous."

"Should you and I handle the thing ourselves? Or should we take somebody else or two or three somebody else into our confidence?"

But Helen was staring into the fire, as perplexed as Marcia herself.

"As Frank's jilted fiancée I wasn't supposed to know," Marcia went on, "but I do know, that a couple of weeks after he went away a group of people who had lost money through him made inquiries about the possibility of getting him back here in case he Heaven only knows how the thing has been kept as secret as has been done. There's no use denying that rumors are going around everywhere, and rumors breed faster and faster. They'd feed on Frank's return, even more than on his absence. And the gossip can't exclude you."

"The gossip has included me already," Marcia reminded her. "It was a bit of a task to face so many people at the Stagecraft Guild tryouts last night, as a matter of fact. Probably I don't like to be gossiped about any more than anyone else does, but it's all in a lifetime, literally."

"Right, and what's to be done?" "After all my talk, I don't know. If you don't mind, I think I'll ask Dad's advice. He's a clever father. He'll know what to do and how to do it, if anybody does."

She stood up. "Meanwhile, let's pretend the problem doesn't exist. Shall we go on over to Mrs. Henderson's for our play scripts?"

LATELY in the afternoon Marcia, at home, was called to the telephone. Her father's secretary was on the wire.

"Mr. Canfield had to leave on a matter in Miami. He just had time to catch the plane. He wanted me to tell you that he would call you by long distance, at the first opportunity, and let you know just how long he would be away. A week or 10 days, he thought."

Marcia remained beside the telephone, considering. A week or 10 days! Much too long a time to delay in Frank's case. Without her father's advice, how could she act?

Suddenly she lifted the receiver again and called a New York number.

"I want the first available seat on a plane to Chicago," she said into the transmitter.

She must go on with it.

"I'd have a hard time writing down just what I do feel," she said with a half-smile. "Credit what I say or not, but I can't manage to feel that I am the person most concerned or most likely to be hurt. I know the idea behind what you suggest—that because we were engaged I love him, and that because I love him I would be, perhaps, the chief victim of his returning to face the music."

"But—oh, I can't explain it, Helen, except to say that since he went away I haven't been worried over the man I was going to marry; I have been worried over a friend who did something terribly wrong and ran away from it! The only thing clear in my mind is this: He must come back. He must help repair the damage he caused. He must do it for his own sake, if for no other reason. Frank and I were friends for so long, and he always seemed splendid. What happened to him, what sort of panic he may have got into before he went so completely haywire, I don't know; but things certainly must be maneuvered so that he can get back his self-respect, pay off the losses of people who trusted him."

Helen, is the person most to be considered! And we would be as great cowards as he seems to have been if we let him down now, when he so needs propping up, no matter how the treatment may hurt him."

"Do you know," said Helen, "I've a good deal of a Spartan. You're a good deal of a Spartan. But, since you have demonstrated

Jimmy Fidler in HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.—Studios, like insurance companies and public utility corporations, are prey for unscrupulous persons who stoop to legal trickery to get something for nothing. I forget how many thousands of damage and libel suits have been filed against film companies, but piled one on another I am sure they would reach nearly to the moon.

To avoid many such suits, studios have established "name censorship" bureaus. It is the duty of these offices to make sure pictures contain no infringements on persons, places, or things. For example, if a script-character is named John Smithoski of St. Louis, the "name censor" consults St. Louis city and telephone directories for a real John Smithoski. If there is one, the name of the screen character is changed. Thus is avoided the possibility of libel suit should the real Smithoski take offense at his fictitious namesake.

Far-fetched insinuations must be guarded against. The title "Murder in Sing Sing" was switched to "Murder in the Big House" because Sing Sing is real, and in the picture a guard committed murder. A guard might have sued the studio. Dozens of picture titles have been changed for similar reasons.

Even though history books specifically name traitors and blackguards, studios avoid bringing these characters to the screen, lest some great-great-grandchild cry, "You made him worse than he was!" and sue for a trifling ten million or so. Therefore, the dastardly work is usually perpetrated by fictitious characters. Better to be financially safe, studios believe, than to be historically perfect.

Gary Cooper, sprawled on the grass outside a studio stage, was asked by Jack Oakie why he was not at work. Cooper opened one reluctant eye and pointed to the director and scenario writer, sitting in head-to-head conference. "Just waitin' around," Gary cracked, "until they dream up the next shot."

I sometimes wonder if Gracie Allen's radio characterization is such a pose, after all. No kidding, she kens less about what she is doing—and she admits it—than any actress I know. George Burns does everything for Gracie. He examines her scripts, accepts or rejects or re-writes her dialogue, and rehearses Miss Allen in her lines. Each afternoon he delivers to her a few pages of script on which are typed next day's dialogues. Each night he instructs her how to recite her lines and next day she repeats them with about the originality employed by a parrot. Gracie trusts George so implicitly that, to save her soul, she can seldom tell you the story of the picture in which she is working, and often she does not know the title.

WRITING — TO SELL —

By ETHEL K. LOCKWOOD

SPEAKING OF SUSPENSE

Many beginners are completely stumped when they attempt to build suspense. This is partly because they are afraid of it—they realize it is such an important ingredient of the successful story, that they approach it too grimly. And it is partly because they do not create their characters carefully enough.

I have said this before, and I shall probably repeat it many times. The reader is not interested in the events of your story until he is interested in your characters. We don't care what is happening, in a short story or book, until our attention is caught by an intriguing character. He may not be a good character, mostly speaking (witness Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind") but he will be interesting. He will make us want to follow his adventures to the finish, either to see him glorified or crucified.

To build suspense, then, we must have an interesting character. Our next move is to provide him with an overpowering desire to do something or other, after which we place an obstacle in his way. The suspense is created by the character's attempt to win whatever it is he is struggling for. The bigger the struggle, the more suspense. Slight suspense, slight story.

This struggle—or conflict—is the core of your story, the thing that will either make it or mar it. It need not be hand-to-hand combat, but it must be a very real struggle, in which the reader can participate vicariously. If it parallels some struggle the reader, himself has undergone, so much the better. He will then finish the tale in a practically breathless condition, and vote you one of the greatest of living writers.

No Conflict, No Drama. No Drama, No Story!

It might be a good idea, Mr. Beginner, to write that line on your cuff, or tuck it on a slip of paper in your hat band (if you are prosperous enough to own a hat). Check your "duds" with this measuring stick. Chances are, you'll conclude the editor knew what he was doing when he rejected the darn thing. "Why, that's only a character sketch," you'll say. Or, "that was catastrophe, not drama." This will prove you are cutting your eye teeth, and the next thing you know you'll slam your rattle on the floor, and demand to be taken out of your high chair before you bust something.

Progress!—that will mean progress. Now you're beginning to see short story writing as it really is: a trade to be learned, like tending bar or paper hanging.

This eye-opening is sometimes painful. But it is necessary. No one but a teetotal crack-brain wants to go on kidding himself that he's a writer just because he put over a couple of manuscripts. He happened to hit the mark, that's all. Now he's going to hit it because he knows what and where it is.

You want to be a repeater in the writing business. You'll get that way by paying careful attention to suspense, and how to build it.

HEARINGS ON DAM PROGRESS ARE SCHEDULED

The starting date for broad scale flood control projects along the Santa Ana river will depend in a large measure on the progress with which local interests make the necessary lands available to the federal government, it was learned today from the war department.

Although projects for flood control on the Santa Ana river have been authorized by congress, local interests will have to take the initiative in securing the necessary rights-of-way, it was said.

At the present time the war department is scheduling hearings in the various flood areas to determine how fast land acquisition is progressing. This information will be used in establishing priority for the various authorized projects.

Population, potential flood dangers, and other factors also will be used in establishing a priority list of projects, but since no projects can be started until the land is provided to the government, speed in securing right-of-way will be among the prime factors.

War department officials were confident that funds to make a substantial start in the flood control program would be made available at the present session of congress.

Christian Science

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The Golden Text was from Paul's epistle to the Romans: "If ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God."

A Bible selection in the Lesson-Sermon cited these verses from I John: "We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not; but he that is begotten of God keepeth himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not. . . . And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know him that is true, and we are in him that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God, and eternal life."

One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "Mortal man can never rise from the temporal debris of error, belief in sin, sickness, and death, until he learns that God is the only life."

"HOW I LOST THE EVIL EYE," TRUE STORY OF INDIA, TOLD BY WOMAN LIVING IN S. A.

Mysterious India, ruled by superstition, is one of the most fertile of fields for the production of fiction. Even stranger, and more gripping than the fiction that has India as its locale, are the true stories that come from that land of mystery. Betty Ward, a Santa Ana woman, who spent several years as a staff member of the Women's Medical College at Ludhiana, India, has written a true story of an experience when she first joined the staff.

The story, "How I Lost the Evil Eye," follows:

Far from England's new king, Edward VIII, lies his most important Asiatic possession—India—where anything may happen, even acquiring—and losing—an evil eye.

The chill December wind blew across the hospital courtyard and through the half opened door, setting the flames in the hurricane butti to flickering. The light was dim, casting weird shadows in the corners of the bare room. Spiders and lizards played hide-and-seek in the cracks of the whitewashed walls and over the irregularities of the earthen floor. I shivered as I sat on a stool and watched the dying Hindu woman on the crude charpoy.

I thought how far I had come from the University of Pennsylvania when I had graduated in medicine six months before. Now I was a member of the staff of the Women's Medical College at Ludhiana, India, and this was my first patient.

Tetanus Victim

The woman, a low caste Hindu, had come to the hospital that day suffering with tetanus. Dr. Vance, who was in charge of the case, had given the usual antitoxin treatment. Her only assistant was an untrained nurse, and she was watching for fear of starting a Dr. Vance had worked over the patient constantly, and by nine o'clock in the evening went to take a well earned rest, leaving me to watch for a few hours. I was both frightened and elated at my first assignment.

I could speak no Hindustani and the dhal and patient no English, but Dr. Vance assured me that if I said to the former, "Dr. Vance Missahib ko jaldi jai!" the dhal would fetch her to my assistance.

My other instructions were that I was to watch continuously and when a convulsion seemed imminent to give the patient a little chloroform to avert it if possible. I scarcely dared breathe as I watched, for fear as starting a seizure. The flickering light shone on the tortured brown face, playing strange tricks with its expression. After several hours of tense watching, alternated by administering chloroform which failed to avert any convulsions, my elation had completely evaporated and only fright remained. I was anxious and homesick—also very chilly. For India in the Punjab can be extremely cold in December, despite the fact that it is an inferno in May.

At last Dr. Vance returned, but still it was not the end of the vigil for me. She realized at once that our efforts had been in vain and that the Hindu woman was dying.

"We will have to lay her on the floor, Dr. Ward," she said. "She must be in contact with the ground when her spirit passes so that Mother Earth may receive her sins and her soul go untrammelled to its new habitation."

With the help of the dhal, we lifted the dying woman to the dirt floor of the room, where, despite our most valiant efforts, tetanus claimed another victim, even as in America.

Indians Blame Doctor

It was not a propitious beginning for my chosen career, but Dr. Vance tried to cheer me with the reminder that there were many other patients awaiting my help, who were not fated to death as this one had been.

However, all the Indians declared I had the "evil eye," a very unfavorable possession, as it made the patients afraid of me.

I was terribly discouraged, and felt as if I had made a dreadful mistake in studying medicine. I was sure I could never risk doctoring another sick person. Just as I had decided to hand in my resignation and retire in defeat, Dr. Vance, who was not so pessimistic regarding my ability, assigned me to one of the medical students.

Shanti was a Hindu girl of about 18, who had had persistent nose bleeds for nearly three years. Almost every doctor on the staff had made unsuccessful attempts to cure her. Her hemorrhages lasted several days defying all efforts to stop them. When they finally yielded, Shanti would be exhausted.

By the time I arrived on the scene, the girl had developed a moderate anemia. A few hours after the Hindu woman died of tetanus, Shanti started another nose bleed. Dr. Vance called me to her office, gave a brief history of the case, and told me to see what I could do.

"Do you know anything that we have not tried yet?" she asked.

Despite my recent discouragement, I was pleased with this assignment. "I think I do," I replied, "one of my professors showed us a new method last year at college. I believe it will work."

New Cure Succeeds

I went to the compounder's, as the English call the drug room, and secured a few crystals of chromic acid. Next I proceeded to the students' ward where I found my second patient in bed, a blood soaked cloth half hiding her face.

PET TALKS By MRS. T. J. NEAL

The two highest priced dogs coming to California in 1935 were the English Setter Champion, Sturdy Max, $3,600. The other sale was a bull terrier female, Champion Faultless of Blighty, to the motion picture actress, Dolores Del Rio, $5,000. Both dogs came from England. According to weights of the dogs this would be about $50 per pound for the Setter and $100 per pound for the bull terrier.

For cats troubled with hairballs, the right instrument is a good stiff whale-bone brush in the owners hands used daily on the cat, before, not after, the ball forms.

In every litter there is one dog smarter than the rest. Usually it is the runt which is the cleverest and still the most unprepossessing physically. The reason some people are disappointed in the puppy they buy, they pick for looks rather than brains.

Spain, before the present revolution, was noted for its fine racing dogs. Dog races were in the greatest vogue. Greyhounds were bred and sold at enormous prices. Every good sized city had three or four tracks and there was much betting.

The so-called air-cleaned seed for canaries is not so important as many people think. Birds in their natural habitat were compelled to eat uncleaned seed. Nature provided no moisture in the mouth of a bird, therefore all dirt falls from the mouth and the clean kernel remains.

POSTMASTER URGES EARLY CHRISTMAS MAILING HERE

Santa Ana people with friends or relatives in foreign countries are being advised by Postmaster Frank Harwood to mail Christmas packages early. Harwood said today that to insure the arrival of presents in foreign countries in time for Christmas distribution the following schedule should be followed:

All mail for the Straits Settlements, Siam and the Netherlands East Indies should be dispatched not later than November 21. For Hongkong and Manchuria, the deadline will be November 27. December 8 is the final date for packages addressed to Japan and Chinese points, other than Hongkong.

Mail destined for South America, he said, should be mailed to reach New York City not later than Dec. 4 and European mail should be in New York by Dec. 12.

In sending foreign mail, Harwood said, all packages should be wrapped securely in only the heaviest wrapping paper. Tissue paper will tear and allow the contents of packages to become damaged in transit.

Post-Nuptial Event Honors Mrs. Conkey

One of the first post-nuptial parties for Mrs. Lucius Conkey (Frances Parke) was a Saturday afternoon affair at which Tustin Union High school faculty members and other guests were brought together in the home of Mrs. E. R. Byrne in Tustin. Mrs. Conkey, who recently made announcement of her wedding August 8 in Yuma, Ariz., is secretary in the office of Tustin Union High school.

Winners in bridge were Miss Florence Lindblom and Mrs. Elsie Daly first and second, and Mrs. May W. Burum, low. Mrs. Orville Northrup held high score in "easy money."

Mrs. Byrne observed a pink and white motif at the refreshment hour, when chicken salad and orange rolls were served to precede a dessert course of Bavarian cream. Young Couple Honeymooning At La Quinta

Wedded Sunday afternoon in Anaheim St. Michael's Episcopal church, Hilton Laverne Daleesi and his bride, the former Miss Margaret Jean Jackson are spending their honeymoon at the resort home of Hume West in La Quinta, Calif. It was in the same pleasant setting that Mr. and Mrs. West spent their honeymoon a few weeks ago. Mrs. West was Miss Stella Jackson.

On their return from their honeymoon in a week's time, Mr. and Mrs. Daleesi will make their home at 217 East Broadway, Anaheim, with the bride's father, Thomas W. Jackson, Mr. Daleesi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Daleesi, 205 North Drake street, Fullerton, will resume his duties with the Bank of America in Fullerton. He is a graduate of Fullerton Union High school and of Junior college. The new Mrs. Daleesi attended Fullerton Junior college following her graduation from Anaheim schools. She has been employed in the offices of the County Welfare department.

Pretty Wedding Many Southland friends of the young couple assembled for the wedding, which occurred at 4 o'clock, with the Rev. Howard Dow officiating. Organ music played included the Wagner and Mendelssohn Wedding Marches.

White chrysanthemums and gleaming tapers adorned the altar where the bridegroom and bride took their places, with Mrs. Jackson giving his daughter in marriage. The bride was attired in a moss grey crepe dress with yellow and brown trimmings, and brown accessories including a smart little hat brightened with a cluster of flowers. She carried a bouquet of the valley and yellow roses. Observing the bride, who wore in her shoe a lucky sun, she wore in her shoe a lucky sun, she wore in her shoe a lucky sun.

Miss Priscilla Blybach of Fullerton, as maid of honor, wore a frock in egg plant hue, with hat and other costume details in brown. Her bouquet was of gardenias and bougainvillea. Norman Watkins of Fullerton was best man. Ushers were Clifford Lakeman and George Brumley.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Daleesi paused in the church to receive congratulations of the guests before leaving on a honeymoon trip for which they were accompanied by as far as Riverside by the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Earle J. Jackson of Anaheim. The newly-married couple were complimented at a prettily appointed wedding dinner which Mr. and Mrs. Jackson gave at Mission Inn. In honor of the party, special wedding music was played.

Leadership Conclave Held at Balboa Island

Five Santa Anas and two Fullerton leaders were included in the group of 75 Southern California women who attended an annual leadership conference which young business women's clubs of the Y. W. C. A. held over the week-end at Mar Casa, Balboa Island.

In the group from this city were Miss Mary W. Howard, Y. W. secretary; the Misses Genevieve Humiston, Virginia Anthony, Jean Egan and Mrs. W. C. Fitcher. Attending from Fullerton were Miss Edna Munford, Y. W. secretary, and Miss Frances Barber.

The conference opened Saturday evening with a talk by the Rev. Wesley Nicholson of Los Angeles First Congregational church, who talked on "Participation and Leadership in Youth Groups of the Community." He pointed out that clubs should not rush into alliances with large and influential groups about which they know little; but rather should form study groups within the club to follow a definite program of investigation.

Sunday was given over to discussion groups on "Participation and Leadership in the Y. W. C. A." "How are the Asilomar Recommendations being carried out in Local Clubs," and other topics.

Tentative plans were made for a midwinter conference to be held February 13 and 14 in Glendale, with the planning committee for the event to meet January 10 in Glendale.

FOR GOLDEN WEDDING

When Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Miller, 1220 Cypress street, returned home late the past week after having been honor guests at a house-party in the home of Dr. and Mrs. B. H. Among the gifts was a crystal reliquary set in a solid gold tray, sent by a club of eleven couples in Huron, So. Dak., to which the Miller's belonged a number of years ago before they came to California.

PATIENT IMPROVING

Encouraging word as to the condition of Miss Beulah May after an emergency appendectomy, was given this morning from St. Joseph hospital where Miss May is a patient.

The operation occurred Thursday night, and Mrs. Clyde C. Hoffman, of Eagle Rock, formerly Miss Margaret May, of this city, was here to accompany her aunt to the hospital. It will still be some time, however, before the well-known Santa Ana writer will be able to receive friends.

HOPPERS PROFIT FARMERS

CEDAR CITY, Utah. (UP)—Iron county farmers turned a plague into a good business proposition recently. They sold grasshoppers that overrun the country to a fish bait company and also drew profit from the filming of sequences of the motion picture, "Good Earth."

Pantry Shower Is Finale To Bridal Events

Bringing to a conclusion that gay round of pre-nuptial parties complimenting Miss Kathryn Harbert and her fiancé, Van S. Pomeroy, who tonight will take their wedding vows, was a Sunday night buffet supper at which they were complimented last night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Jerome Jr., 2209 Greenleaf street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Irwin joined with Mr. and Mrs. Jerome as hosts at the party, welcoming a little group of the young married set to which their honor guests will so soon belong.

In the dining room where supper was served from a table arranged with gleaming damask and lace, emphasis was placed on a big cluster of yellow chrysanthemums centering the table, was completed with quaint little bouquet tapers in flower colors. Other candles lighted the rooms where small tables were arranged with yellow roses as flower decorations.

Following the leisurely supper hour, games in wide variety were introduced, but the event of chief interest was a pantry shower whereby the prospective bride and bridegroom were relieved of any urgent need of purchasing supplies.

In the party with Mr. and Mrs. Irwin and Mr. and Mrs. Jerome and their guests of honor, Miss Harbert and Mr. Pomeroy, were Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Nalle, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Ainsworth and Mr. and Mrs. Emory White Jr.

Marilyn Greenwald Celebrates 12th Birthday

When Mrs. H. R. Greenwald and her daughter, Miss Ruth Greenwald, joined as hostesses Friday night at a dinner party in the family home, 1810 Greenleaf street, they celebrated the 12th birthday anniversary of their daughter and sister, Miss Marilyn Greenwald.

Yellow paper and flowers which centered the table were the keynote of a sunny motif observed in all autumnal appointments for the affair. Miniature horns of plenty filled with candies marked each place. Served with the last course was a birthday cake frosted in yellow and decked with twinkling candles.

After Marilyn had opened the many packages which her friends provided for her, a game of cootie was introduced as diversion. Prizes went to the Misses Lorraine Thompson, Helen Holzgrafe and Bonnie Lewis, who held first, second and low scores.

Following the affair with the two blossoms and the birthday celebrant, Marilyn Greenwald, were the Misses Bernadine Curran, Betty Jones, Madeilyn Kubitz, Helen Holzgrafe, Beth Thordike, Frances Nall, Margaret Lockett, Bonnie Lewis, Marilyn Bear, Ruby Shilkin, Janet Coffing, Lorraine Thompson, Janet McAdams, Mary Adelle Henderson, Eloise Revell, Virginia Finley, Betty Platt, Patricia Collins and Sally Watson.

Needleworkers Enjoy Tea Hour as Finale to Afternoon

That pleasant atmosphere which is induced when a bevy of women meet to chat together over bits of fascinating needlework, was apparent Friday afternoon in the Terry E. Stephenson home, 1522 North Broadway, where Mrs. Stephenson entertained members of a sewing club to which she belongs.

There was the usual friendly afternoon of chat, culminating with the tea hour, for which the hostess placed small tables about the room, laying them with the daintiest of tea cloths and calling into service the fragile Bealeek china which everyone so much enjoys as part of any similar hospitality in the home. The radiance of many candles added charm to this interesting affair.

Comprising the group with Mrs. Stephenson were Mrs. J. Dick Wilson, Mrs. Oliver Halsey, Mrs. Harry Spencer, Mrs. Alex Brownridge, Mrs. W. B. Williams, Mrs. J. H. Metzgar, Mrs. L. A. West, Mrs. E. B. Sprague, Mrs. F. W. Wlesseman and Mrs. C. E. Skirvin.

TRAINING OF YOUTH URGED BY MINISTER

ORANGE, Nov. 14.—The importance of training the youth of the nation along Christian lines was emphasized in a sermon delivered at the First Methodist church yesterday morning by Dr. Robert A. McKibben, pastor of the Church of All Nations of Los Angeles.

In outlining the work of the Church of All Nations, Dr. McKibben told of a young newsboy who had arrived in Los Angeles from Texas and who was offered a contract as a prize fighter. On his way to sign the contract, the young man stopped at the Church of All Nations where he became so interested in the work that he failed to go on to sign the contract and since has become one of the most prominent workers in the church, the speaker related.

SILVER ACRES

SILVER ACRES, Nov. 16.—The sudden death of Carol Wallace, cousin of Mrs. Walter W. Berry, occurred on Tuesday night, when she passed away in her sleep, at a girl's school in Glendora, which she was attending. Miss Wallace was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd I. Wallace, of Polson, Mont. and with her mother had been visiting for several weeks at the home of their cousin, Mrs. Berry. The girl's father flew here from Polson, to accompany Mrs. Wallace home. The body was sent to Polson for burial and the funeral services will be held on Monday.

Mrs. E. A. Murphy and Mrs. Fay Murphy went to Corona on Saturday afternoon to visit the former's daughter, Mrs. Manila Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville D. Jenkins and their daughter, Nancy, and Melville Draper, and Mrs. A. Butler, all of Long Beach, were visitors on Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Cantrell.

Mrs. Cyril Van Keirsbeek and her daughter and son, Mrs. John Dinkel, of El Monte, and Mr. Harmon Van Keirsbeek, went to Irvine recently, where they were guests at a luncheon given by the former's sister, Mrs. Victor Salnets.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hubert and their daughter, Miss Edith Marie Hubert, were dinner guests on Wednesday evening of Mrs. James G. McCracken.

Brain Twizzlers

By Prof. J. D. Flint

Colonel Carpenter, a man of considerable wealth, had made his strong hand and keen mind factors in the fates of many individuals and groups and he was not without friends—or enemies.

The Colonel's niece was named beneficiary in a large insurance policy held by him and so, one night, an important investigation began because that night the niece had received a late telephone call from the Colonel in which he had said, "Listen child! I have just been shot. Tell the police that the man was —" and there his voice had stopped, according to the girl. She couldn't believe that the choking voice could be the Colonel's or that he could be hurt but when the police investigated they found the Colonel's apartment unlocked and him shot through the heart. The room showed no signs of violence and, naturally, mystery shrouded the case.

After it was cleared up the insurance company refused to pay the niece the amount of the policy. Why?

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

EVERY subject of the Japanese emperor, at least once in his life, is certain to make the pilgrimage to Yamada and the sacred shrines of Ise. For here is the center of Shintoism, a spot so venerated that all its buildings are destroyed and rebuilt every 20 years, for the sake of keeping them undefiled.

These shrines are sacred because they are connected intimately with the deification of the emperor, and for that reason, too, hundreds of thousands of worshippers pass through the gates. But no accidental eyes may look within. Foreign visitors are kept outside of the very first gate, and must not view the sacred splendor of the four enclosures.

The shrines of Ise are scheduled for destruction and rebuilding again in 1943. Then new cyresses from the crown forests of the Kiso mountains will be brought down for the new buildings, and gorgeous pageants will celebrate their reopening. The shrine is pictured on a Japanese stamp issued in 1929.

SPAIN'S FUTURE

With the downfall of Madrid and the President of the Loyal forces contending that the fall of Madrid will not end the war in Spain, one wonders whether the Spanish territory will eventually be broken up into small states of conflicting tribes or governments, as in China, where war lords rule.

There can be little progress in civilization without a dependable government that can enforce its rules and protect the lives and property of its citizens. At the present time, it is difficult to see how this central authority will prevail in Spain and bring order out of chaos.

THE LAST STRAW

The theory of male dominance has taken a severe drubbing since the turn of the century. Behind executives' desks or airplane controls, on golf courses, in law offices—wherever there's a Will, there's a May. Women smoke, cut their hair short—not long ago, in fact, a movie actress started a women's trouser vogue.

Now another blow to masculine superiority comes from Hollywood. For months casting directors have frantically sought someone to play the role of Huck Finn, freckled, ragged, barefoot hero of Mark Twain's famous story.

If ever a youngster was too per cent boy, Huck Finn was. And 300 lads flocked to the studio to try for the coveted role. If a rustle was heard when the decision was announced, it was probably Mr. Clemens reviving in his grave, for the urchin chosen for the part was:

A 13-year-old girl!

A DEFINITE GAIN

The American economic system has sad gaps and inefficiencies, when viewed at close range. In the long view, however, it shows up a good deal more advantageously.

Figures compiled by the National Industrial Conference Board, for example, show that there has been a substantial improvement in the lot of the American wage-earner since 1914.

Average hours of work in manufacturing are today approximately 23 per cent below their 1914 level; at the same time, average weekly earnings, adjusted to take into consideration changes in the cost of living, are 39 per cent higher.

This is a very noteworthy improvement. It has been accomplished slowly, with many ups and downs along the way—but, over the years, the American system has made a definite and solid advance in terms of human well being.

SELLING SELF

In chatting with a prominent executive the other day, discussing an individual who had considerable merit and talent along certain lines, the prominent executive remarked that this individual with talent had failed to sell himself to his employer—that every employee must be able to convince his employer as to the qualities and quantity of the services he is rendering. If he does not, he eventually does not get the compensation or recognition he is entitled to.

Many employees have an awe of their employer and hate to even mention the valuelessness of their service, believing that the employer knows what they are worth and will always see that they are paid accordingly. This is not true. The employer very often does not know what the employee is worth and is producing—often it is handled by a subordinate whose judgment is none too good and takes a short-sighted view and thinks he is saving money by underpaying an employee. When, in reality, he is breaking down the morale of the organization and causing help to change too rapidly, to the detriment of the organization.

It is true that many employees are very poor salesmen and do not know how to sell their own services and, as a result, are often taken advantage of.

Any organization that can help correct this and make the employees good salesmen as to their services is performing a service to society. It is important, however, that the employee, before he feels that he is being unfairly treated and producing more for what he gets than the employer will be able to get someone else permanently to do the same job for, to frankly go to the employer and present his case. Do not be afraid to do this. If your employer is trying to take advantage of you, he sooner the employee finds it out, the better off the employee will be in knowing this. Learn to sell yourself.

(The articles under the Clearing House are published for the purpose of an exchange of ideas and are not necessarily the opinion of this newspaper. Contributors are urged to confine their articles to 300 words.)

Editor Register:

I am referring to your editorial in Thursday's paper "Can We Disregard Human Nature?" In this you say, "We wonder whether the relief by the great majority of workers that social security law will give them rewards after they are 65 sufficient to take care of their needs, will not cause them to really relax in their efforts to save and to produce." In a former editorial you said that the Social Security Tax would be so heavy on industry that they would have to take it out of the wages of employees.

The tax as provided in the present Social Security bill increases from 1 per cent to 3 per cent between now and 1948. I notice in the morning paper that wage increases are announced by various corporations from 5 per cent to 10 per cent. It would seem that if they can increase their wages from 5 to 10 per cent that the three per cent Social Security tax would not be very prohibitive.

The Social Security act is in principle the same as a life income at 65 which the insurance companies have been selling to the public for the last 50 years. Have you noticed any relaxation on the part of the buyers of insurance in their efforts to save and produce because they had an income policy to provide for their old age at 65?

Insurance companies have been accumulating assets at a very rapid rate for the last 50 years, and have not noticed any very great handicap on the people who put their money with the insurance companies on account of the necessity of having to invest it. And as the country grows there will still be ways and means of investing it for the benefit of the people who have deposited it.

Aside from the fact that the Social Security Act would not provide the death benefit over and above the 3 1/2 per cent accumulation I can see no difference between this and an insurance policy. In principle the plans are the same.

Inasmuch as the Social Security act is a law and is being tried

"WILL" TO BELIEVE

We are indebted to Mr. Walter Flockton for his very frank criticism of our economics, as printed in the Clearing House in The Register on Saturday.

He quotes Burns as saying, "Convince a man against his will, he is of the same opinion still". Frankly, we hope we have no "will" to believe anything. We only hope to believe what is in harmony with natural laws. When we will, or wish, to believe otherwise, our beliefs invariably conflict with nature and do great injury to society. It indeed would be very pleasant to believe that wages, without production, increase purchasing power but if we do so believe our wishes are at war with our reason.

Mr. Flockton cites Henry Ford's $5 minimum wage as a conclusion that wages create purchasing power. Just suppose that Henry Ford had let his competitors select his men to whom he paid $5 a day and they produced practically nothing; would that have increased purchasing power? Or, suppose Henry Ford had promiscuously hired every man who made application, in order of application, without regard to fitness, and paid the man $5 who not only did not produce anything but, in his inexperience, did a lot of damage to materials. Would that have created purchasing power? Would it have encouraged others to be efficient in order to earn the $5, if those who did not produce it also received $5 a day minimum?

Everyone knows that Ford has a very rapid pace and the man who cannot do his share of the work that comes down to him on the belt immediately loses his job and must seek employment elsewhere. If custom decrees that no one be permitted to pay less than the arbitrary wage, then these naturally slow workers will have no jobs and must be supported by a tax on the consumption of others who do produce rapidly.

It is a conceded fact that Ford selected the most skilled men he could for the $5; he hired the best men that $5 would buy and they undoubtedly did a lot more for the $5 than would have been produced had he hired unskilled and inefficient men for $2, $3 or $4 a day.

Henry Ford's $5 policy only tends to prove that it is profitable to hire good men who can produce more than $5. It does not in any way prove that wages without production increases purchasing power.

If wages are to be based on what we "will" or would like to see a man receive, instead of in proportion to what he produces, then who can or will employ the beginners, the shiftless, the incompetent, the careless, the irresponsible and the elderly man who cannot make the pace?

The wage problem is the most perplexing problem facing civilization. The problem is not to increase wages today at the expense of lowering wages each succeeding year, as is the case when the total wages are so high that the seed corn is consumed for food, or the replacement of capital is consumed, or the funds necessary for research work are used as consumable goods. The answer is to pay as high wages today as will permit and, at the same time, make it possible for everyone to receive higher wages each succeeding year because of new discoveries and inventions and better machinery.

In the last paragraph, the contributor suggests that we raise our sights and we may see a "higher power working in a mysterious way His wonders to perform".

We do not believe there is any mystery in economic laws and in production. We cannot believe what we wish because other people believe in mysterious ways of production. When we try a thing that is magical, which we do not understand, we always get into trouble. So we cannot agree to any course of action until we believe that it will permanently raise the wages of all workers.

Let it be understood that this editorial is in no way meant to offend Mr. Flockton. It is only because we sincerely believe that a better understanding of how to permanently raise wages as high as possible is most essential, that we are obliged to take exception to the contributor's beliefs.

Mr. Flockton accuses the publisher of The Register of being an employer who wants to GET as much as possible in the way of profit for the least wages and outlay. We will discuss this tomorrow. There is no question on which there is more need of a frank discussion than wages.

out and will no doubt be amended as necessary to make it acceptable to accomplish its purpose, why not encourage the idea of employees providing for their old age by the assistance of the government and employer, and relieve the necessity of providing for relief funds for these people?

If every producer in America at age 20 would put aside $5 a day until he is 65 he would have $1000 of life insurance in case of death, and would receive $10 per month for life at age 65, or could receive $1,297 in cash. If he would have paid in only $618. If an insurance company can do this, why can't the government do it?

The insurance companies have multiplied their business five times since 1920, and we do not think that the public is over-sold because the average policy is under $2000. The average provided by this act is expended by each man for his own wants and is not "expended" by a great steward or commissioner of the treasury.

Yours truly,
J. W. EYES.

A Prospect for Some Unemployment Insurance

Day By Day In Washington

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1936)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—When the American people make a saving of $637,000,000 a year—enough to pay the entire electric light bill of all the residential consumers of the United States for a whole year—one might think it was news. Indeed, if it were discovered before or during a political campaign or if the saving were the direct result of the TVA yardstick policy or some other governmental action, the politicians would not hesitate to crow about it.

But it so happens that the $637,000,000 saving was accomplished through the unspectacular, unpolitical, unheralded and unglorious activities of a few engineers with the financial backing of a few rugged individualists.

The saving was achieved in the automobile industry, and the manner and method of its accomplishment conveys a lesson that bears directly on the course of future recovery in America. It bears on the question of price, of payrolls, of economies, of salesmanship—in fact, the whole thing is worth studying as an example of what can be done in America without governmental aid and in spite of governmental interferences.

Back in 1928, there were approximately 3,250,000 cars sold to the American public and the total cost was $2,925,500,000, while in the year ending November 1, 1936, there were sold just about the same number of new motor cars at a total cost to the American people of only $2,283,500,000. Everybody will concede that this saving of $637,000,000 has been accomplished by an actual improvement in the quality of the American automobile, both in speed and comfort. But most people will be surprised to learn that this has been brought about without cutting the total number of persons employed and without any appreciable difference in the payrolls.

Thus, in 1928, there were 435,000 men employed in the motor industry, and in 1936 there were 442,000.

As for the payrolls, the figure for 1928 was $742,000,000, and in 1936 the payroll reached $736,000,000 and is still going up.

Here, then, we have an increase in efficiency without a drop in payroll or number of employed but with a diminution of price to the American people and a better product for the price than ever before. What sort of phenomenon is this?

The answer is to be found in the four remarkable books published within the last two years, wherein is offered the biggest single proposal yet made for the improvement of America's economic conditions. The automobile industry's experience is concrete proof of how the Brookings theory has worked and can be made to work—and substantial profits can be earned besides.

For it is a matter of public knowledge that the motor car companies are making money, declaring dividends, increasing payrolls and paying out bonuses to deserving employees.

The Brookings idea, in brief, is that, if money wages are forced up too rapidly, there will be an economic breakdown because the articles sold will have to bear an increased price. If, however, real wages are increased—which means adding purchasing power by a reduction in the prices of articles that wages can buy—an increase in real income is given to the consumer.

Now, there is no intention in the Brookings report to convey the impression that money wages should not rise. On the contrary, the argument is made that they should likewise be increased wherever possible, but not at a rate that increases the cost to the consumer faster than all the groups of consumers can meet those costs out of their wages.

Obviously, it is contended, the way to bring prosperity is to increase the purchasing power of as many groups as possible at the same time, and this can best be done in many cases by reducing the prices of articles bought so that the individual family can buy other articles with the savings.

Thus, motor cars have become an indispensable part of the budget of the American family. Motor cars would be bought nowadays even at the 1928 prices, but those people who would be able to afford them would not have as much money available for other purchases.

What the motor industry really has done is to put $637,000,000 that might have gone into automobile purchases into the pockets of the consumers for purchases of other articles. Other producers, other sellers, other companies have had their sales increased or the slack taken up in their previous year of low sales because of the $637,000,000 now made available, not through the generosity, but through the engineering efficiency of the automobile makers.

The Brookings principle might not apply to all industries or all businesses, but, at a time when there is a psychology about raising prices in order to absorb higher labor charges, the question might well be asked whether greater and greater efficiency is not, after all, going to be required in the coming years, and by efficiency one does not mean production technique so much as proper use of selling methods and a better understanding of markets.

Business men will say, of course, that it is hard enough to find economies and to increase payrolls and to keep prices down when the government comes along and puts on more and more taxes. Doubtless the answer to this will be the education of the American people about the extent to which federal and state taxes are hidden in the selling prices of goods and articles bought. Maybe that will tend to force federal and state taxes down.

Take gasoline, for example. Due to remarkable research and efficiency in the refining of oil, the American motorist in the last fif-

Little Benny's
Note Book

BY LEE PAPE

We was eating breakfast and ma said to pop, "It doesn't pay to be too nice to people."

If you'll be so nice to me as to pass me the butter I'm sure the action will pay you large dividends in the form of stored up energy which I will transform into making money for you to spend, pop said, and ma said, "It's that Bertha Cornhouse again, really I believe one of these days she'll drive me from the frying pan into the fire, I mean really. She seems to haunt me like a bad penny. I mean there is any reason I couldn't drop into Kelly and Dupons this afternoon to look over their news hats without finding Bertha Cornhouse in there?" ma said.

But she found you in there too, at least in a manner of speaking, I mean she found that you found her in there, pop said, and ma said, "She's just impossible. Why did she have to fix her fancy's clutches on the only very hat in the shop that appealed to me? In fact she already had it on her head when I came in. Trust her not to lose any time in trying to get ahead of somebody. And she asked me how I thawt it looked on her, and that was the point where I was too nice to her, ma said."

You advised her to buy it? pop said, and ma said, "Well practically, I could have told her it was a frill and an eyesore, but instead I merely remarked in a noncommittal way that it made her look a little odd but that it might do to wear around in the mornings, and low and behold she said she'd been looking for a little morning hat for weeks, and she bawt it like a flash in the pan. Well now Willyum everybody knows there is no such thing as a morning hat and that's just my reward for being nice to anybody like Bertha Cornhouse. All I hope is she sees a dozen just like it the first time she wears it, and I don't say that to be catty, ma said."

It's a woman's world and I'll take another cup of coffee to feel more manly, pop said. Which he did.

teen years has been given an economy of nearly 50 per cent, that is to say gasoline that used to cost 26 cents a gallon is actually sold today, apart from taxes, for about 13 cents a gallon. Yet the motorist pays somewhere around 18 cents, and in some localities the price is higher.

If the tax item were eliminated, there would be so much of a demand for gasoline and so many more motor cars needing gasoline that America's oil fields would not be troubled much with the pro-ration or curtailment of production that has been disturbing the oil controversy for the last few years.

And speaking of taxes, there is no doubt that the American motor car would be bought by more people and at a much lower price than cars can be bought today if it were not for taxes. Thus, in 1928, the direct taxes on automobiles amounted to $391,630,025 and the indirect taxes came to $225,257,942, or a total of about $717,000,000.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

GAGGING POLITICAL PROPHETS

I have just read with care a compilation of a mass of predictions made before the election by all sorts of leaders of press and politics.

And following the examination of this compilation I have reexamined the record of all the varied presidential polls.

As far as the polls are concerned, it is obvious that much remains to be done towards the perfecting of a technique of selective sampling of public opinion. In the poll technique we have the foreshadowing of an important social instrument, but it is still a very crude instrument. It is important that this instrument be perfected.

As far as the political prophets are concerned, the complete lack of any correlation between facts and forecasts is staggering.

If this game of solemnly predicting results that have no shadow of possibility of appearing is kept up, we shall see an utter loss of confidence in leadership.

It would be a wholesome development if, in 1940, the leaders of all parties would enter a pre-election compact to refrain from any and all predictions regarding the outcome.

I know it is utopian, but it would add enormously to the realism and honesty of American politics if, for once, a campaign could be waged in terms of an honest and comprehensive and unevaded discussion of the issues with the verdict left in the hands of a people whose emotions were not pawed over by political prophets who were using their prophecies not to foretell the results but to influence the results. American politics needs a fresh bath in sincerity.

We are tired, not to say disgusted, with the insincerity, the evasion, the withholding of ultimate intentions, the deliberate trading with pressure groups, the attempt to make every opponent an enemy of the people.

We have been experimenting with a new deal in political policy; we need a new deal in political technique.

IRRITABLE MOTHERS

"Don't cry, Mollie. Tell me what is the matter. What has happened?"

"I can't help it, Aunt Helen. I don't know what has gotten into mother lately. She never was like this. I just can't stand it."

"What happened?"

"Nothing. That's just it. I came in from school as usual. I laid my books on the table while I went upstairs to change my clothes. I took my hat and coat along with me. I left the books on the table because I would need them again soon. I work downstairs at the living-room table. I never leave my things around."

Before I could speak she turned on me and said everything she could think of until she ran out of breath. Then I went out, picked up my books, got my things and came over here."

"It's like that all the time now. Sometimes she is as nice as ever, but most of the time I never know whether she is going to throw something at me or kiss me. I try not to do anything to bother her, but I have to have a little fun. She tells me to ask the girls in, but I can't when she is like this."

"I see. Your mother is not well. That is why she is so irritable. She cannot help it sometimes because she feels so miserable. You know she has taken care of the family now for almost twenty-five years. That is a long spell. Her nights have been broken often. She has had to nurse and cook and mother and everything to all of you. She is very tired."

"Another thing. She is getting close to fifty years old, and at that time all women have trouble with their health. They have an upset that strains their bodies and minds. You can't feel at peace when your whole body aches and throbs and squirms. That is why your mother is irritable at times. It will pass and she will be as kind as ever. Just now she needs a lot of loving, a lot of help. When you go home stop in at the florist's and take her a bunch of
